

The following is a letter received from Jerry Cunningham, Ph.D., of Pocatello, Idaho, on October 7, 1996:

Endorsement

As a psychologist, I have worked with the 515 in conjunction with neurofeedback and light-sound machines. During neurofeedback therapy the 515 would be used to help entrain the brain waves toward the goals being used in the neurofeedback procedures. For example is the neurofeedback was training beta frequencies, the 515 would be set to produce binaural beats in the beta range.

This combination of procedures seems to have a synergistic effect and assists the patient in reaching the neurofeedback training goals. The pt. has also been given the 515 to take home to use as an adjunctive element to the main treatment process. For ex. the pt could use the 515 in theta & delta binaural beats to assist in getting to sleep & remaining asleep in patients who might have a sleep dysfunction as part of their symptom pattern. The 515 therefore can be used both during the treatment session as well as an adjunctive element in the pt's home.